They say jealousy is healthy in a relationship, but is it?

Desperate for love after eighteen years living with her estranged mother and her 'perfect' boyfriend cheating on her, Rosalina is bowled over when a tall, handsome stranger takes a shine to her. Tom.

When flirting quickly spirals into a whirlwind relationship, her best friend Ruth and Louis - an acquaintance from school who just so happens to be in love with her - aren't best pleased with the way she lets Tom treat her.

Hurt by their judgement, Rosalina gives Tom what he wants - 100% of her time; and quickly realises that this is a mistake she would regret in the long run.

Caught in the middle of a love triangle filled with abuse, confusion and baggage from Tom's past, Rosalina has to decide whether to stay to keep the peace - the way she's done her whole life - or break free in order to put herself first for once.

They also say "if you love something, let it go", but if it really loves you, it doesn't always come back...
